MEDIA SUMMARY 2018

MALTA ON-AIR 2018

In 2018 the 9th edition of the International Radio Festival (IRF) took place in Valletta, also European Capital of Culture 2018, and remains the world's first and only Audio Conference and On-Air Festival, showcasing and debating the business and curation of music radio content, whilst broadcasting across all four continents.

The IRF's format presented radio's unique strength in storytelling by default, where on-air hosts who command the daily loyal and trusting ear of their listeners, voluntarily share their IRF experiences with incredible enthusiasm, and everything associated with the IRF's host country Malta on-air and online, before and during the festival - and with much ongoing story-telling post festival.

Hosting the IRF in Malta further supported Malta Tourism Authority's music festival strategy (closely aligned to Music Cities) and represented the ultimate audio driven destination marketing channel by leveraging the highly influential, fully editorially driven, music radio/audio space – a media space rapidly being re-discovered as one that delivers lasting impact.

In this visual summary, we re-live IRF Malta 2018 and the incredible impact it delivered by highlighting IRF's participants' voyage of storytelling.

Ultimately the IRF18 Malta Edition further cemented the International Radio Festival's standing as the B2B Global Summit for the world's leaders in the music radio industry.

IRF 2018: DESTINATION MALTA

LISTEN TO HOW THE WORLD SOUNDS!

The IRF showcases the best music radio stations from across the globe, establishing itself as the global annual event for people at the cutting edge of the music radio industry.

IRF Malta brought together 30 radio stations and 118 radio hosts from five continents.

From its open-air studio at Fort St Elmo, these industry leaders broadcast their shows live via radio and web stream to their listeners back home, and collectively reaching millions of listeners around the world.

More speakers for the International Radio Festival

More speakers have been announced for the International Radio Festival taking place in Malta next month.

BBC R&D's Executive Producer Nicky Birch will cover exciting developments in voice-first audio formats, while international radio consultant and former Real Radio director John Simons will lead a panel on the rise of niche radio services from rock to jazz.

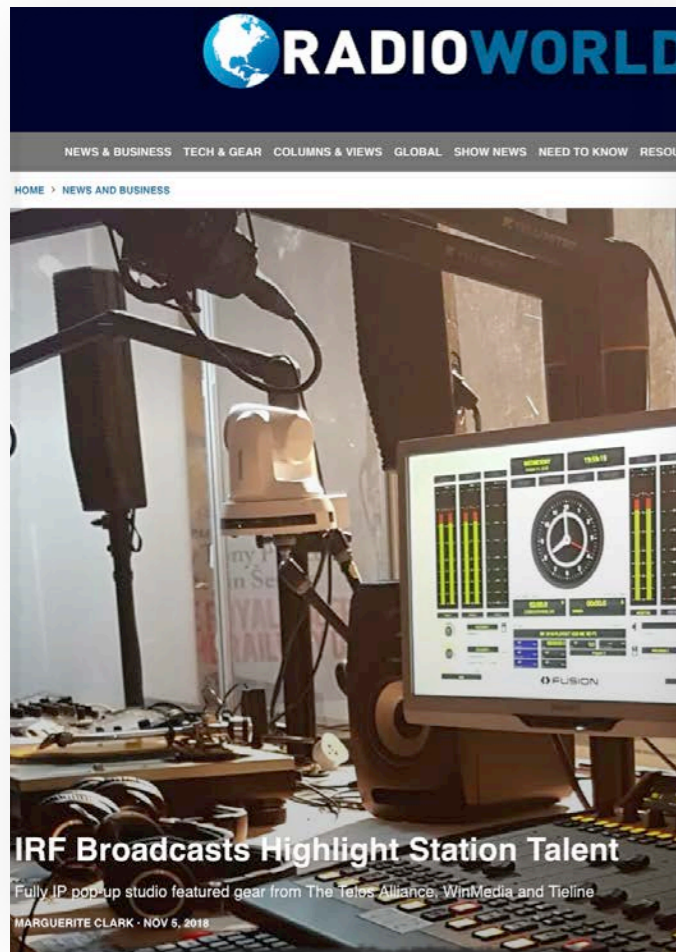

James Keen, the newly-appointed Station Director for Channel 103 and Island FM in the Channel Islands, will talk with Andrew Zammit from Malta's number one hit music station 89.7 Bay, about the benefits and challenges targeting a small island-based audience.

The Conference will also include a celebration of ten years of Absolute Radio, with its Content Director, Paul Sylvester; and a look at how audio services are re-inventing radio from Xanthe Fuller, Head of Community at Mixcloud.

The ninth annual International Radio Festival, Oct. Oct. 29 – Nov. 4, offered a platform for radio industry professionals to discuss business, production and curation and to celebrate station talent.

Held at the Piazza D'Armi in Valletta, Malta (the European Capital of Culture 2018), the gathering is, according to Festival Director Darryl von Däniken, the "largest public on-air and on-location radio event reaching millions of listeners around the globe." It serves as center stage for stations to showcase their music show formats to their peers, as well as to local and global audiences around the world.

This year, more than 30 stations, made up of commercial, public, large and small broadcasters, aired live from the IRF on-air studio via the festival's temporary DAB+ channel to Malta, Gozo and Comino, and online back to their respective home audiences worldwide, reaching more than 100 million listeners globally. Live broadcasts took place from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. Each station airing its program during an assigned slot.

Melbourne's dance music radio station, Kiss FM, invited to IRF in Malta

Thursday 18 October, 2018

Melbourne based independent radio station, Kiss FM has been invited to broadcast at this year's International Radio Festival in Malta.

Station Manager Timmy Byrne will present his drive show 'The Beautiful Drive', live to air to an audience of over 100 million listeners around the world on the 3rd of November from on top of St. Elmo, Pjazza d'Armi, the beautiful 15th Century Fort over looking over the township of Valletta.

The show will be showcasing all Australian dance music to a worldwide audience.

Tim says "I'm extremely excited, humbled and honoured once again to be invited to attend and my show at the truly unique International Radio Festival. My previous involvement with the Festival in Zurich, Switzerland enabled me to meet radio industry experts and icons in a highly professional and friendly environment."

Like so many aspects of popular culture, radio has been labelled as 'dead' by many commentators, usually old hacks struggling with the changing dynamics between audience and media, trying to denounce what they don't or can't be bothered to understand, or ignoring innovation.

The gathering of world radio at this year's International Radio Festival in Malta painted a much more positive picture, however, with vital international shows broadcasting live and the best minds answering questions about the future (and raising more) at its one-day Audio Conference.

As Will Jackson, Conference Organiser and Managing Director of Audio UK, explained, "There has never been a more exciting time for radio." But how true is this appraisal from inside the radio industry and what exactly does the future of radio listening look like?

INTERNATIONAL RADIO FACES - MALTA 2018

1'000 PICTURES:

Since its first edition in 2010, the International Radio Festival (IRF) has offered an intriguing insight to a multitude of different radio cultures and their presenters from around the globe. One discovery made was that all involved didn't only share the same incredible passion for music radio, but also the same jovial saying that 'everyone has a face for radio'.

IRFaces was launched in 2014 to offer all IRF's guests a visual place to remain united, and since then the collection has grown over the years capturing the faces of its international radio guests and their friends, turning the collection into the world's most comprehensive photographic gallery of radio hosts.

Working with star photographer Tobias Stahel, the IRF presents the world's first collection of international radio faces, an ever-growing community who enjoy the following of millions of listeners around the globe.

And Malta offered the chance to capture even more radio faces which will be added to the gallery during the course of 2019
